Information we hold

Protecting and sharing information about you and general information we hold

Introduction

The information held in your health record is important for your care. It is a record of your relationship with those caring for you. This relationship is based on mutual trust and confidence and we continue to do everything possible to protect that trust. Staff will ask for information about you and this leaflet will explain what information is collected and the reasons why it is needed.

What we do

Our staff are trained to handle your information correctly and protect your privacy. We aim to maintain high standards, adopt best practice for our record keeping and regularly check and report on how we are doing. Your information is never collected for direct marketing purposes, and is not sold to any third parties. Your information is not routinely processed overseas, and if it is we undertake to inform you. Care may be provided by a care team which may include people from other organisations such as health, social care, education, or other care organisations. Local hospitals, GPs and Social Services in some areas are able to view a summary electronic record. This Trust shares summary information with health and social care professionals in some areas e.g. Cheshire Care Record, Physical Health and GPs. Access to these systems are very tightly controlled and monitored.

Why we collect information about you

It is important that the details you provided are accurate and you let us know of any changes, for example, if you change your address or GP. Information collected about you to deliver your health care is also used to assist with:

- Making sure your care is of a high standard
- Using statistical information to look after the health and wellbeing of the general public and planning services to meet the needs of the population

- Assessing your condition against a set of risk criteria to ensure you are receiving the best possible care
- Preparing statistics on our performance for the Department of Health and other regulatory bodies
- Helping train staff and support research
- Supporting the funding of your care
- Reporting and investigation of complaints, claims and untoward incidents
- Reporting events to the appropriate authorities when we are required to do so by law
- Contacting you to improve services e.g. to take part in surveys or consultations about our services

How is your information stored?

Health records are stored on computers and in paper files and we have a legal duty to keep these confidential, accurate and secure at all times in line with Data Protection laws.

The legal basis for the processing of data for these purposes is that the NHS is an official authority with a public duty to care for its patients, as guided by the Department of Health and Data Protection law which says it is appropriate to do so for health and social care treatment of patients, and the management of health or social care systems or services.

If we need to use your personal information for any reason beyond those stated above, we will discuss this with you. You have the right to ask us not to use your information in this way. However, there are exceptions to this which are listed below:

- The public interest is thought to be of greater importance, e.g.
 - If a serious crime has been committed

- If there are risks to the public or our staff
- To protect vulnerable children or adults
- We have a legal duty, for example registering births, reporting some infectious diseases, wounding by firearms and Court Orders.
- We need to use the information for medical research. We have to ask permission from the Confidentiality Advisory Group (appointed by the NHS Health Research Authority)

Data Protection law gives individuals rights in respect of the personal information that we hold about you. These are:

1. To be informed why, where and how we use your information.
2. To ask for access to your information.
3. To ask for your information to be corrected if inaccurate or incomplete.
4. To ask for your information to be deleted or removed where there is no need for us to continue processing it.
5. To ask us to restrict the use of your information.
6. To ask us to copy or transfer your information from one IT system to another in a safe and secure way, without impacting the quality of the information.
7. To object to how your information is used.
8. To challenge any decisions made without human intervention (automated decision making).

Information is held for specified periods of time as set out in the Records Management Code of Practice for Health and Social Care.
