Who is this service for?

The Cheshire West specialist learning disability service is for adults from the age of 18 who have a learning disability, live in the Cheshire West locality and meet the eligibility criteria. For information about the eligibility criteria please contact Eastway or Wyvern House.

Making a referral to the service

Anyone can make a referral to the Cheshire West specialist learning disability service. For example: a person with a learning disability, a carer, social worker, residential care staff, day service staff, GP. Please contact Eastway for further details about making a referral to the service.

Following a referral, a team member will visit to find out what the person's specific needs are. The visit may take place at the person's home, day service, place of work or at Eastway or Vale House. If necessary, the team member will also talk to the people who support the person; this could be family, day centre staff or residential care staff. The person's needs will then be discussed with the other staff in the team. This is to make sure that the most appropriate health professional is allocated to work with the person.

The role of the community team is to support people with learning disabilities to lead full and healthy lives within their local community. The team is made up of health professionals who specialise in working with people with learning disabilities.

The community team

The members of the team work together to plan and provide a range of services for people with learning disabilities who may be experiencing additional needs. These needs may include: mental health difficulties, complex health needs, communication difficulties, physical difficulties, challenging behaviour, epilepsy, autism, and specialist support for forensic issues.

The team also provides specialist information, advice and training for family carers and support staff.

On pages 4&5 are brief descriptions of the roles of each community team member. For more detailed information, please contact us and ask to speak to the relevant professional.

Members of the community team

Community learning disability nurses

Community learning disability nurses have a range of knowledge and skills which they use to provide specialist healthcare, advice, support and treatment for people with learning disabilities. They can also offer training in areas such as autism, epilepsy, mental health and medication, complex health needs, and challenging behaviour.

Health Facilitators

Health Facilitators support people with learning disabilities to access general health services. A large part of their role is to provide training to GP's, hospital staff and carers to raise awareness of the health needs of people with learning disabilities. They can also work with people who have complex health needs.

Psychiatrists

Psychiatrists provide assessment, diagnosis and treatment for people with learning disabilities who may experience difficulties with their mental health. They advise each person's GP about prescribing medication and monitor the person's progress. They can also help assess and treat people with learning disabilities who have epilepsy.

Clinical Psychologists

Psychologists help people with learning disabilities and their carers understand and cope with any psychological problems the person may have. They can do this directly with the person, or indirectly with the support of the person's carers and other professionals. Psychologists can help to identify the best types of support that might reduce any distress and improve the person's quality of life.

Care managers (social workers)

Care managers offer advice, information, support and assistance to people with learning disabilities and their carers. They assess needs and determine access to services e.g. day services, respite care. They work closely with other staff in the team in order that the most suitable services are provided.

Members of the community team

Speech and language therapists

Speech and language therapists assess all aspects of communication. They give support to people with learning disabilities and provide advice and training to their carers. They also identify and provide treatment and support to people with dysphagia (difficulties with eating, drinking and/or swallowing).

Occupational therapists

Occupational therapists assess the impact of a person's learning disability on their ability to carry out daily activities, and give advice to promote independence. They also work with people with a range of complex physical and mental health needs and use specialist approaches such as sensory integration and engagement in meaningful occupations (the things that the person likes to do, that makes them feel good and keeps them well) to address behavioural needs.

Physiotherapists

Physiotherapists work with people who have complex and multiple physical difficulties, respiratory and neurological disorders. They can complete specialist assessments in aspects of movement, seating, positioning, mobility and respiratory care and provide appropriate interventions. In addition they are able to assist during assessments for specialist equipment and offer training and advice to staff and carers.

Intensive Support Service (ISS)

Intensive Support is a specialist function of the Community Learning Disability Team to help people stay out of hospital whenever possible. This service is aimed at individuals who are experiencing breakdown or experiencing crisis that places them at risk of admission. The focus is on early intervention to prevent crisis from happening or getting worse.

Policies and Procedures

The community team staff work within learning disability and trust policies and procedures which are available for you to view and download from our Internet site at www.cwp.nhs.uk.
